

It is evident from these statistics that the Seventh-day Adventist denomination is growing throughout the world, and in view of the zeal of the members of this denomination, it will in all probability continue to grow in the days to come.