

Note: Since 1903 the Seventh-Day Adventist Denomination has also created departments from time to time to look after various phases of their work. By 1950 the following departments had been created:

The Department of Education
 The Home Missionary Department
 The Medical Department
 The Ministerial Association
 The North American Regional Department
 The Publishing Department
 The Radio and Television Department
 The Religious Liberty Department
 The Sabbath School Department
 Temperance
 The Young People's Department of Missionary
 Volunteers
 The Bureau of Public Relations
 The Ellen G. White Publications
 The National Service Organization
 The Association of Seventh-Day Adventist
 Self-Supporting Institutions

6. Facts and Figures about Seventh-Day Adventism

a. Membership

Baptized adult church members	3,382,914
(June 30, 1980)
Organized churches	21,061
Sabbath school members	3,987,040
Sabbath schools	40,941
Ordained ministers (active)	9,144
Full-time salaried workers	87,743

b. Educational Program

Total denominational schools	4,616
Current value: educational institutions (1978)
	$517,991,474
Total enrollment	498,550
Schools above elementary level	793
Academies (H.S.) in North America	37
Colleges in North America	10
Universities	2
International correspondence school	1