

Westminster, when Westminster had been going about 4 or 5 years. I said, How do you figure that. He said, As long as Princeton stays sound, the conservatives students will all go to Princeton, so there will be nobody hardly to go to Westminster; and as long as Westminster is there, Princeton will stay sound."That's what he ~~said~~ figured. But the liberals wouldn't be that patient.

Neher: How many teachers did come to Westminster out of Princeton?

AAM: There's another thing. Dr. Machen, for instance -- if here was a student who did not come with us but stayed up there, well, there's a compromiser. Anybody who would not come with us he was just no good! And a minister who would stay with them was no good. But there was Dr. Vos and Dr. Hodge and Dr. Armstrong who were very conservative men, very fine men, and Dr. Machen and Dr. Allis thought they were just tremendous. They three stayed at Princeton, and you could not say a word against them! They were alright. I think their sympathies were with us, and one day after about 3 yrs., Dr. Machen said, You know what Dr. Hodge thinks is the right activity for a Princeton professor? He likes to stand out on the road and tell everybody who comes by that Westminster is a better seminary than Princeton! And Dr. J. Ross Stevenson got pretty disgusted, and he told Hodge, You don't belong here. You should be at Westminster! Hodge got upset, was taken ill and went to the hospital and Machen and one or two others went and saw Caspar Wistar Hodge ~~and~~ at the Princeton hospital, and they said he was full of energy but two days later he was dead! But Armstrong stayed there until his death or retirement, and Vos retired within a couple of ~~xxx~~ years, and as I said they got men who were kind of in the middle and they got men like that who were fairly fairly elderly. After Westminster had been going about 4 or 5 yrs.,
