

geology class and when we would go on a field trip, he immediately would start in trying to convince the professor that evolution was wrong. He had read some pamphlet by somebody against evolution, and he'd say so-and-so, etc., and the professor was a very shrew fellow who would lead him on and lead him on until he'd get him to make an absurd statement or something you could easily prove was untrue. Of course when the professor knew 6 times as much about the subject as he did it was rather silly to think he would be able to change the professor and prove the professor was wrong.

I always sort of took the attitude of sitting back and listening and judging. But he went in there to convince them. He was a fine preacher and personal worker. He was a really effective Christian worker when he went to Occidental. After this professor in geology made him feel like a fool several times, he began to change. I think he was there one or two years when I was there and then I went to the Bible Institute for a year. At the Bible Institute they had a Professor McGuinnis teaching who was just kept on philosophy and I don't think he was a particularly good influence in the Institute. In fact they had a big blow up two or three years later and he was out! But he did have -- he was a very bright fellow and I believe was entirely loyal to the Scripture and he did have just the material that was just the answer to a lot of the things that I'd gotten at Occidental. My year at the Bible Institute there was very beneficial. I did not change my ideas on anything there, but I reached a stronger conviction and a positiveness and a certainty about it. But to mention this fellow _____ again, when I finished my year at the Institute and went back and visited Occidental I saw him,
