Neher: Had = how (?) they pick one? They added it on to one of the clubs?

AAM: Everybody belonged to one of the clubs. Of course, if you were married and ate at home that would be different. Most of the people were single, and most of the people would belong to one of the clubs. By this system the club got maybe a fifth more in putting together than maybe the individual's vote but the result was you never were sure how the vote would come out, because the club vote would count a little more than the individual's vote. They elected him head of the Benham club because he would attract the new students. They knew his personality would. Charlie was in a way a queer combination. He had a certain friendship for me right from the start. I don't know how much at first. But he had a real admiration for Machen, at least after the first year. I don't know when it started. Yet he had a loyalty to the Benhams and it showed itself in a couple of ways I don't think it is worth mentioning here perhaps.

When I graduated, I got a fellowship to study in Germany which was a new fellowship Dr. Wilson got for me. Just one individual case which was $1000. The regular fellowships were $600. I did not say much of the fact that mine was $1000. But the regular fellowships were $600. I had worked for the OT fellowship because that year it wasn't Dr. Wilson who assigned it, it was somebody else. I preferred to work directly with him. I said, Should I write a paper for that man? He said, Don't worry, leave it in the Lord's hands." In the end I got this special fellowship. So I got to Germany, and 6 weeks after I got there Charlie Woodbridge came, and a fellow named Ed Rian, who has in recent years been assistant to the president of Princeton Seminary. But who has had quite a
