

Dont/put a check, but I know some of you will. But I hope you don't. Put an F under that ~~h~~ column if it is figurative. And of course if it is partly each, then ~~h~~ sometimes you can divide it up into two predictions. One literal and one figurative, or if ~~h~~ it is partly each, then you can make a note over in the remarks column. Then comes the next letters. I means immediately. That is if ~~h~~ Jer. tells ~~h~~Zech, something about himself. It is something that is going to happen right soon, that is immediately. Now N, near, I am considering near, here, as being going into exile. That is near. Now in Jer.'s day, immediate and near are so close, it doesn't ~~h~~ matter which one you put down. ~~h~~Near is going into exile, in Isa.'s case there are ~~h~~150 years difference, and it wouldnt be near. And then D means distant, and that is return from exile. Near is going into exile, and distant is ~~h~~ returning from exile. And V mean very distant, and that means anything beyond the ~~h~~period~~h~~ period of the return from exile. Now that is what those means.

Now you will notice that at the end I have problems and remarks overlapping. That is so that wherever you have a problem you can start it right next the the V. So that we can run our eye down and see what problems you have ~~h~~ listed under each one. Any ~~h~~ problem that occurs to you in connection with the interpretation of it, just jot it down thereunder problems and if it is just a remark and not a problem, then start it ^{over} ~~h~~ a little further to the right. Now that is all, and I am afraid that I have kept you a little over....(end of the record)

(end of 1st Semester)