

the Christians unanimously agreed, without the action of any council, without depending on the authority of any particularly wise individual, without any group of men having come together and decided upon it, they have agreed that these are the books which are inspired of God. Nearly half of the books of the N. T. are written by one man, and that is a man who isn't named in the gospels as one of the twelve apostles. He is never mentioned in the gospels. ~~He~~ He was a man who opposed Jesus Christ, who fought against Him, who persecuted Jesus' followers. but God miraculously converted Him. The eleven apostles didn't get together and have a vote and say we are going to ~~make~~ make Paul an apostle. They had nothing in the world to say about it. Jesus gave his list of twelve apostles which did not include Paul, but God miraculously reached down and picked Paul out, made him an apostle, and inspired Paul to write about half of the books of the N. T., and other. He reached down and picked up, and caused to write books of the N. T., we have not evidence had anything to do with apostles. And we have no evidence whether they were apostles, and we can't even be sure ^{in the case of Hebrews} /who wrote it. But we have a unanimity of opinion, and we have Jesus Christ setting the seal of His approval upon the Old Testament, and by implication, and I believe by a very very justifiable implication making the acceptance of the N. T. like that of the Old, and objective question, not a subjective question, not do I like the book of Hebrews, dot do I like Jude, do I like James, do these books seem to me to be the kind of books that Christians would13 $\frac{1}{2}$ Not, have I proof who wrote these books, because we haven't evidence, we can't go back and get it. There is no way in the world to prove it, but these are the books which the Christians unanimously accepted within a period of two or three centuries after14....and ~~being~~ the N. T., the same process took place that took place regarding the Old Testament, and Jesus Christ set his seal of approval upon these books, and he applied there would be a N. T., and there came to be a N. T., and I believe He set the seal of His approval similarly upon the N. T.end of 0 66 (end of class, Nov. 30)
