

past, and our students have always enjoyed it in the past. You will find most of our students, the way we've taught Hebrew, have really like it. But you'll like it far more when you get the letters first. And in the course of that six weeks we'll slip in a little principle and a little principle there and you won't realize you're learning that. By the time you have your letters well, you'll be surprised at what you'll know about the language too. And I believe that in twelve hours ~~XXXX~~ a week, we will accomplish as much this year as last year we accomplished in 20 hours. I believe that you will be able to get Hebrew just as well as before. And at the same time to have more time to get your other things well. And this connects right up with ~~XXX~~ a very vital principle and that is this - I think we all know it but it's easy to forget. Education like scholarship is not something that can be poured into you - it's something you do. You need direction, you need advice but you do it. YOU can't sit in classes for years and years and become a scholar by it. You have to learn the material. You have to do the tests. You have to acquire the skill and we show you how to do it. And so we're going to put great stress on the practical acquisition of these things. I feel that in every course there's a certain amount ~~XX~~ that is necessary foundation material. Now I've been amazed ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ from time to time in the past to have a student come up in the final exam, and of the absolutely necessary foundational material in a course, he'll understand about 60% well. And then of the advanced stuff I've given and discussed in class he may have a 70% or 80% understanding of that. And after all that is material which is vital to understand. It's good training for you in understanding other similar material but I might have selected this part or this part or this part to deal with in the class while the basic material he has only say 60%. Now we're going to try to stress of that basic material, which is perhaps a fourth of what's given, that be gotten 100% because

That is vital in (12.) But then in the rest of it, it is not a matter of getting material but of getting skill, learning to analyze, learning to get our material, learning to understand it, learning to get results, so that you have an ability you can use to go on and to work forward in this line. So that your life would not be a matter of, "Here's what I learned in Faith Seminary
