

there was the remains of the devotional attachment to great principles of ethics, the principles which came as a result of the preaching _____. Now, I think to me a most interesting ~~illustration~~ illustration of this is found in the life of George Elliott. You know George Elliott was the woman who wrote novels, most of which show people in their struggle of changing ideas and changing thoughts and ~~but her~~ while she translated Strauss' attack on the Word of God from German to English, she was quite a thorough going skeptic, in fact she told her father when she was a young girl that she would no longer go to church because she didn't believe in those things, but she was tremendously effective in her whole attitude, and here is an interesting account of a _____ meeting with her ~~in the~~ at a visit she made at the University. He says, "I walked with her in the _____ gardens in an evening of a rainy May and she stirred somewhat beyond her _____ and taking as her text three words which have been used so often, the trumpet calls to men (?), the words God, Immortality, Duty Pronounced with terrible earnestness how inconceivable was the first; that's God, ~~how~~ how unbelievable the second, and how dreadfully and absolute the third...
