

get all you can and particularly learn to use it for God's purposes. But realize that there will still be a tremendous area of mystery.

Isaac Newton was perhaps one of the greatest scientists who ever lived. Isaac Newton made tremendous advances. Some people think that Einstein has disproved Newton. I don't think there is any truth to that. I think that there are certain comparatively small areas of Newton's theory where Einstein has worked out advances on Newton, but the advances Newton made over previous knowledge not only in the field of gravitation but in certain other fields, were probably far greater than the advances that Einstein made in this particular ~~field~~ field. He was one of the great scientific thinkers of the world's history but Newton said ones that he felt like a child walking along on the shore of the ocean picking up pretty pebbles. He realized in other words that the great discoveries he had made were a comparatively small amount of ~~the~~ what there is to know in this marvellous universe that God has made.

I think that one of the great mistakes that Christians have made and one of the reasons for much unnecessary discension and quarrelling among denominations is the fact that ~~the~~ people will often take a question and they will say, What is the answer to this question? And they will look in the Bible and they will say. Does it teach this or does it teach this? And I don't think they should do that. I think they should say, Does it teach this? and does it teach this? or does it not give us the answer ^{to} ~~this~~ this particular question. We are all too ready to say a thing must be explained in one of two ways. And this way we find evidence in the Script. doesn't fit with that way and so we say it must be this way. We should learn to get the g truth from the Bible but above all to trust God and know that His ways are right and that he may be leading us like a man in the dark going with his hand in the hand of someone who can see better in the dark than he can and knows the ~~ans~~ ^{area} answer, and God will lead us and direct us in our ways and He will give us from the Scripture what we need for our daily walk and what we need for our help of others but when we try to get the answers to many questions that the Bible does not give us the ans. to and then we stand on those and we make big denominational lines over them, and we consider people as wrong when we don't take the answer that we ^{if}
