

whether we are heathy or whether we are sick, whether we have great happiness or that the world sees great misery, we know that if we are ^{doing} ~~at~~ our best, if we are trying to accomplish and if we are trying to do your will and keep our eyes on what is above, that whatever happens is part of your will and part of what you desire for our good, and so hep us to rejoice in everything because we know it is part of your will.

And help us, our Lord, each of us to have a real part in the accomplishing of your will, but help us also each of us so that we will actually be a part of this treasure you desire to bring into existence, and for the sake of which you created the world and the universe in order that spirits might be moulded and formed
