

difference isn't in the youth, it's in the training the youth get. It's in the teaching they get, and in the neglect so often they get of their parents. There ~~is~~ has come a tremendous change in our whole educational system in the last century. Dozens of colleges and seminaries a century ago were presenting the Word of God and standing firmly on the Bible. During the last 50 years they have been denying the Word and destroying the faith of those who go there.

I studied four years ago under a man who was highly regarded in the archaeological field, but a man who had ~~written~~ written many books attacking Scripture/ ^{teaching} A man who, though he was a minister in a great denomination, took an anti-Christian stand on most points. One day in a class he happened to mention he as a young man had read Wm Henry Green's books attacking the higher criticism, and he had decided to devote his life to being a second Wm Henry Green who would stand for the Bible and show the ~~w~~ errors of those who attacked it. So, he said, I went to Harvard University to get the very finest training I could in ancient history and in archaeology to be a second Wm Henry Green. When he came out of Harvard with his doctor's degree he was thoroughly opposed to ^{stand and} Christian doctrine and/during the next 50 ~~x~~ years through his books and through his teaching he exerted a tremendous ~~stand~~ influence in this country. That has been the situation that has happened over and over in this country in these last 50 years.

I mentioned ~~yesterday~~ yesterday Timothy Dwight of Yale and how he turned that institution around about 1800. But the situation then was altogether different, ~~but~~ because at that time nominally the school stood for the Word of God. No professor there would attack the Word of God! He would not dare. He might not say much for it, he might in his heart have great doubts. But he did not try to attack it
