that was trained in Paris, which calls themselves the Red Cambodians, this small group has managed to get control. When they seized Phenm Peng immediately they ordered thousands of people to leave the city. They went into operation rooms where the people in the hospitals were in the middle of an operation, and said, "Get out, get out, immediately." They took them out into the country -- some estimate as many as 2 million people may have died from privation and difficulty. Here is the awful == article I just mention (Jan. 23, 1978) -- Land of the Walking Dead (says). "The work day seldom varies. Men women, children are roused at dawn. Sent out into the fields. After a mid-day rest break they toil on till dark. No holidays. No days off. The sick must rely on untrained medics who treat cholera with pepsi-cola and typhoid with coconut milk A meal is a bowl of thin rice gruel and ~~popakoes~~ occasionally a piece of dried fish. It is forbidden to dance, read books, make love or take part in any philosophical, political, or cultural discussions. Anyone who breaks the rules faces immediate execution. The transgressor is usually clubbed to death with a pick handle. But in special cases like those where starving workers were caught cannibalizing dead bodies, their is ^{special} ~~special~~ punishment == torture. They are buried in the ground up to their shoulders and beaten to death, or their heads are chopped off and jamed on to pointed stakes." That's what is going on in Cambodia today and who is raising objection After all it's their sovereignty. They have the sovereignty, and do what they want. Can a similar group grasp control here?

Well, we have a situation here where the inflation that brought so much trouble to Germany is growing on us. People argue a lot about what causes inflation. Yet the answer is perfectly simple. If you
