

Sennacherib

Fullerton, K., "The Book of Isaiah: Critical Problems and a New Commentary".
Harvard Theological Review (1913), 478ff.

Summary ---- (pp.501-2)

Winckler (1892) advanced the theory that there were two campaigns of Sennacherib against Judah, a successful one in 701 to which 2 Ki. 18:13-16 refers, and a second, which ended in a great disaster, after 691.

This theory was defended by Prasek(1903) and by Fullerton (1906).

Meinhold and Nagel reject this two campaign theory, but differ in their judgments on the narratives. Meinhold denies the historical credibility of the accounts, while Nagel defends it