

all the little shrines here and there have Franciscans who are devoted to them - many of them men of very little education. You have a group of Dominicans in Palestine very highly educated, studying the ~~true~~

(5.75) and very often proving that some of the Franciscan shrines are false which the Franciscans don't like at all. And the Jesuits are devoted to the maintenance of the established order and consequently they are very suspicious of the Dominicans in Palestine and every now and then the pressure against the Dominicans from the Jesuits becomes very strong. But it used to be - 15 years ago - that the Dominicans had a very nice answer because the leading Jesuit <sup>scholar</sup> ~~started~~ in archeological matters, had once expressed a doubt ~~that~~ as to whether the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem was actually at the spot where Christ had been buried. That was one of the primary <sup>points</sup> ~~things~~ of Roman Catholicism as far as Palestine is concerned, ~~(XIX)~~ that the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is on the genuine spot. And so it used to be in the Dominican Magazine (6.75), which is a very fine magazine of Palestine

, that when the pressure from the Jesuits against them for their trying to ~~up~~ up some of the Franciscan shrines, became to strong, they would run an article in their magazine in which they would refer to some discovery or some fine act that had been done by this great Jesuit scholar and then they would put a footnote and just mention in the footnote say, "It will be remembered that this is the man who at such and such a time expressed doubt about the genuineness of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre". Just enough to suggest that if you say more against us we'll ~~bring~~ bring this out into the limelight - and then they weren't bothered by the Jesuits for a little while again after that. It happened several times. Mr. Sutton? (Student question - Yes, they are strictly monarchists. But the Roman Catholic church is strictly monarchist. In the article on bishops in the Catholic Encyclopedia it says that the monarchical authority
