

"That's easy. All you have to do is to do a great good deed that God will put to your account as against your wickedness and it will cancel it out and you will go to Heaven instead of to Hell." And he said, "What can I do?" And they said, "God is displeased because in your kingdom there are thousands of people who are not subject to the Pope, thousands of people who do not perform the mass, never attend the services of the mass. Put an end to this and you will have eternal bliss." And so Louis sent his troops down into the sections that were solidly Huguenot and he quartered large groups of troops there and tried to make life <sup>as</sup> disagreeable ~~mix~~ and unpleasant as he could and it was very soon apparent that anybody who would join the Roman Church would be much better treated by the state and of course, a lot of people did though the religion didn't go very deep. And then finding the great mass of them holding out for their faith, he began attacking them in different ways under the leadership of his Jesuits and finally he revoked the edict of Nannes and he gave the order that within the next three months all Protestants must join the Roman Church or lose all rights of citizenship and be subject to imprisonment. They are not allowed to leave the country but they must acknowledge the Roman Church, be received into it and seek to carry out its orders. Protestant pastors, on the other hand, they are allowed to leave the country, they have 60 days in which to leave the country. If they do not leave within 60 days they are subject to death. That was the order which he gave. The order was <sup>rigorously</sup> ~~rigorously~~ executed. There were thousands of people who escaped from the country, great numbers escaped - it was against his orders but great numbers of Protestants escaped and there are large Huguenot settlements in the United States and there were many went to England, great numbers went to Germany, they held Protestant services in the French language in Germany. I don't know whether they still do or not but I
